"Whether it's in athletics, the classroom, or clubs, Marist Red Foxes think critically and engage. My Marist faculty mentors patiently and diligently assisted my application and project development, allowing me to reach my potential. Coming into college, never would I have expected to have interned at a top 10 tech company for two years, captained a Division-I varsity team, and received a National Science Foundation Research Fellowship prior to graduation. Marist creates innovative thinkers, skilled scholars, and goes above and beyond the typical small-liberal arts college via pushing their students while creating a successful learning community."

"During my time at Marist, I had the opportunity to learn from professors who are not only knowledgeable but also genuine, caring and supportive. That's the difference between Marist and other colleges - professors care about your success and support you in and out of the classroom. When I decided to study abroad for the second time my last semester, both of my advisors helped me make it happen. My professors, advisors, and mentors led me to graduate Magna Cum Laude and with a full time job offer at Goldman Sachs."

"I believe that the biggest thing college did for me was give me a sense of freedom to choose my own path while equipping me with tools, knowledge, and connections to pursue it. Marist offers students a place to truly find themselves. For me, I discovered my passions are public history and serving others and now I am working to earn my Master's in Museum Studies at George Washington University. This would not have been possible had it not been for all support and encouragement from my friends, professors, and Marist as a whole."

"Marist is a community that inspires and empowers. I had the opportunity to build valuable relationships with my professors and peers, allowing for a meaningful learning experience. During my time at Marist, I participated in innovative research, volunteered in local school districts, and worked at the Anderson Center for Autism. All of these experiences and many more prepared me to positively shape the lives of others. Through the support of my professors and the Marist community, I was able to take full advantage of educational and clinical opportunities and felt well equipped to apply to top graduate programs across the country."

"Marist gave me a strong academic foundation and taught me to think critically, embrace challenges, and apply my academic understanding outside the classroom. I was accepted to the J. Richard LaPietra Chemistry Summer Research Program the summer after my sophomore year and learned to do research in biochemistry, analytical and organic chemistry. This opportunity provided me with a skill set that allowed me to receive an internship at BASF the next summer and get accepted to Stony Brook's PhD program in chemistry. The science department gave me the passion and the knowledge to pursue a career in my favorite field. Marist's liberal arts education helped me to become a stronger student with skill set that allow me to conduct novel research and effectively communicate my work."
